

Linda Margaret Abbey

October 16, 1948 - September 7, 2021

Lulu had a big personality... generous, intelligent, quick witted with a great sense of humour.... also feisty, bossy and for those who knew her, not one to be challenged!

When we think of our childhood together, it was one filled with happiness. Our wonderful parents, Ivy and John taught us the meaning of family and brought us up to be close. Whilst we may have ended up living far from each other we have always been in each others hearts and the bond kept strong

Our fondest childhood memories are of the summer holidays from school where our Mum would pack us off together to take the steam train to Kent. We would spend the whole 6 week break with our Grandmother. It was always an adventure and left us with memories to cherish.

We grew up in London and Lulu always stayed a true London girl at heart. She had an incredible career... working for many years within the music industry at the infamous Abbey Road Studios, which is where she met her husband.

They were happy and we remember them as always laughing and full of fun, but sadly the children Lulu longed for were not to be.

When a great career opportunity came along for him that involved relocating to the United States, Lulu took the brave decision to leave her beloved London life and to relocate with him. Sadly, the marriage broke up almost as soon as she arrived in the States yet Lulu showed courage and strength and decided that she would stay and not move back home. She absolutely fell in love with America and Atlanta was to be her home for the rest of her life.

Of course we were devastated at having our sister so far from us, knowing family get togethers would be infrequent, but we kept in close contact and saw each other whenever we could.

Lulu's 2nd career came at Sears where she thrived. She made many great friends and her dearest stayed close and helped her through tricky times. Lulu was forever grateful for these friendships.

Lorraine, Reggie and Gloria... we hope you know how much she appreciated your friendship and kindness.

She also had many friends through Facebook and they were great company for Lulu as her mobility waned and going out to socialise became difficult.

Anyone who knew Lulu would have known her love of animals, in particular her cats...they were her children and she absolutely doted on them.

It is truly heartbreaking how quickly Lulu left us. Despite being so seriously ill, she believed she had more time and it's hard not to have had the goodbyes we'd hoped for. That said, if Lulu is listening now, and we like to think she will be....

“Here's to you Sis, you were loved”

“ Linda and I first met at EMI in early 1973. We became best friends during the period I worked there. From time to time, I would stay at her parents house while Linda still lived with them. I don't know if you remember me, Maureen, but we did meet once in 1975. Linda and I had so much fun; we were mischievous and our colleagues called us 'The Terrible Twins'. Over the years, we stayed in touch and in 2013, when my husband and I were living in Montreal, Linda came for a holiday. Like all good friends, we had our silly arguments, but we always made up as I know we both valued the special friendship we had. Dear Linda, I will miss you; we could always talk to each other about absolutely anything. I'm so glad that your cats have been well taken care of, thank you to Gloria. You can rest in peace, my friend; no more worries. Please give my love to the EMI gang in heaven. You are with the angels now and you will always have a place in my heart. xxxx

“ I first met Linda when I was nine years old through her big sister Maureen who I met at school.
I was often at the family home so saw Linda quite a lot, Linda was as know one who knew her now would believe a very quiet and shy little girl very pretty with red curly hair.

As Linda grew older her personality changed, she was as Maureen said intelligent and quick witted (Quiet no more).

After Linda got married and then moved to America we lost touch, but Maureen always kept me up to date in what she was doing with her life, and Linda did well and had a good job.

Linda had her ups and downs in life but she always pulled through, she was very lucky to have such a loving family who she could always turn to and I know will miss her very much.

Dear Linda you are now with your lovely mum and dad, may you now rest in peace.

Much love Sue x
