“ I met Priscilla when we were graduate students 1977-79. She became a loyal, kind, and supportive friend. I always admired her calm & practical and wise & witty approach to everything we experienced during those years. We shared lots of laughter (I can still hear her laugh!) and some tears. I'll always be grateful for our friendship. I know I've been a better nurse (and human being) because I knew her. My condolences to Ron and the rest of her family.

“ Priscilla and I met in Orlando, Florida following her move there in 1980/81. I was very excited to meet a fellow masters-prepared psychiatric nurse. We worked together at Florida Hospital (Orlando) for several years. In my role as administrative director of psychiatric nursing, I created a new position in the department for psychiatric nurse liaison which she competently filled. Due to our mutual professional interests, we jointly wrote a paper together entitled "The Staff Need Attention too" following the suicide of one of our inpatients. We presented this paper at the American Association of Suicidology conference in New York City.

Priscilla and I were "impossible" cat lovers and enjoyed sharing stories about our various pets. We spent many happy hours sharing dining/recreational activities with our husbands. I am grateful that through the years we kept in touch--I was even able to visit her after she and Ron moved to Georgia. Most recently I feel blessed that she and I were able to talk on the phone in June and July--little did we know that time would be so limited. It gives me comfort that I was able to connect with her at a time when a friend is most needed.

“ Priscilla and I met when Ron and Priscilla moved to Colorado. She was a wonderful person! She always had a smile, laughed easily, loved her cats and dogs, cared about her family and friends and would do anything for you. She was my best friend. I will miss her so much.

“ When I met Priscilla the first time at the Langley Reunion, we found a common interest in knitting. Each year we'd greet each other with "what have you made?" I will miss her.
