“ Sadie- Mamo to all of the family was an amazing grandmother. She gave sage advice whether requested or if she felt you needed a little nudge back onto the right path. Her delivery was with love and understanding, yet to the point. I cherish my memories with Mamo and Papo on the farm in Acworth. Very few of my friends have had the life experiences that I have from living so close to my relatives when I was young. Those memories have reminded me of how important family is and the value of being raised around grandparents and aunts and uncles to help guide you and keep you inline when needed. Something YouTube or TikTok cannot effectively accomplish.

The unconditional love of a grandmother is not something you can learn on an APP, Facebook or in a Podcast- it is something that you are blessed with and if you don't embrace it by taking the time to spend with your grandparent then you are truly missing something special. The things they have seen in their lifetime were challenging, hard, formidable and sometimes exciting but the guidance they give to make things better for our generation in the future is priceless. I know I speak for all of the Williams family when I say Mamo was an exceptional woman and will live on in our hearts and how we raise our children and grandchildren forever. She always ended our phone calls with “Love You” and I hear that same sweet voice at the end of my calls with Sally, Jane & Becky and that makes me smile. Love Katie- Randy's daughter
